COMMENT OF THE DAY

Cyprus Plan

THE British Government deserves much credit for the original and imaginative plan it has proposed for Cyprus. In view of the circumstances, particularly the inability of Greece and Turkey to negotiate with Britain on the island's future, there seems no better way of trying to rationalise existing differences. Partition may still be necessary in some form, but there is something to be said for trying other solutions either before, or concurrently.

In the latest proposal, the idea of partnership is pre-eminent and Britain deserves credit particularly for trying to accommodate local feeling and synthesise it in a way that neither may feel that its demands have been ignored. In fact, to feel that their claims have been most fairly considered, and to the most practicable degree possible, accommodated.

For while it precludes Enosis, it envisages association with Greece and though avoiding specifically the issue of partition, provides safeguards in a similar association with Turkey. But if the principle of partition has not been accepted, then the idea of separation of communal powers has. Two assemblies are proposed in addition to joint proportional representation in an internal governing council.

A Gamble

At its lowest estimate the plan is a gamble, but even so worthwhile. At best, it provides a constructive way of reconciling Greek and Turk in an associated government but this time, with real safeguards. Initial reaction is disconcerting and the difficulty is that neither Athens nor Ankara can envisage partnership as an ultimate ideal—the result of trying to see the future in the perspective of the past and present.

Shaking sovereignty presupposes, of course, a radical improvement in British-Greek-Turkish relations. If the plan is persistently frustrated during the next seven years there can be little hope of a mutually satisfactory solution. Fear of Turkish insistence on total division—five years—however, may mellow Athens to take a more realistic view.

Much To Gain

APPARENTLY NATO's last minute intervention did not achieve much, but there was nothing to be lost by the delay before the plan was finally proposed to Parliament, and on the other hand, there was possibly much to gain by representations made by an impartial though nevertheless vitally interested authority. The UN Secretary-General, had he not been distracted by events in Lebanon, might have been more successful.

What Britain ought to encourage during the new plan's trial period is an extension of its idea of separation and the establishment of distinct communal areas. This need not be more than a form of regional segregation the effect of which may be to soften antagonism somewhat, particularly in the main towns where most communal trouble seems to occur.

There would be a risk of Greece interpreting this as a sop to Corberrus, but for the sake of peace it would be difficult to deny its realism. And with Greek and Turk at peace there seems a better chance of a final solution being reached along the lines proposed by Britain, than by having to enforce a settlement on thoroughly disgruntled people with the help of a few thousand paratroopers.

20 DIE AS TRAIN PLUNGES DOWN MOUNTAINSIDE

New York, June 22.

The Mexico City-to-Vera Cruz night train went out of control today when its electric cable system failed and at least 20 were killed when the locomotive and five cars were thrown off the track.

Rescue workers said that 20 bodies had been recovered and that as many as 40 may have died in the wreck. The Red Cross said 80 other persons were injured.

Railway officials said the train plunged down the tracks from Maltrata station on top of Maltrata mountain.

They said the train roared down the mountain out of control despite the efforts of the engineer, Porfirio Vega to stop it by apply the brakes. Vega was injured.

The train went off the tracks at the bottom. The derailed cars included three passenger cars, a mail car and a freight car.—U.P.I.

MORE EXECUTIONS IN HUNGARY

Three Revolution Leaders Reported Tried In Secret DOCTORS, LAWYERS IN TROUBLE

Washington, June 22.

There have been more secret trials and executions of leaders of the Hungarian revolt in 1956, according to a leading Hungarian exile.

Dr Bela Fabian, Chairman of the Federation of Hungarian Political Prisoners, said his organisation had received reports of the fresh executions in Hungary.

ANXIETY IN POLAND

By DAVID SELLS

Warsaw, June 22.

The execution of Imre Nagy has set Mr Vladyslaw Gomulka and the Polish Communist hierarchy their most embarrassing policy problem since they assumed power in 1956.

Mr Gomulka has firmly maintained silence on the executions, which is regarded here as an eloquent criticism of the chorus of applause from other Communist bloc countries on Nagy's death.

But political observers here are wondering how long Mr Gomulka can prudently remain non-committal without provoking pressure from Moscow and other members of the Communist bloc.

Polen are also forced by the fact that the news of the execution was sprung as a surprise: Mr Gomulka first heard of it from a Tass news agency message, according to well-informed sources.

Bewilderment

The Nagy affair, following the attack on Marshal Tito's party programme and the virtual isolation of Yugoslavia from the Communist bloc, has caused increasing anxiety about the position of Poland—still by far the most independent of Communist nations.

The key to the Polish silence at the death of Nagy is their bewilderment over the role of Khrushchev himself.

Until recently Khrushchev has appeared to them as the "liberal" Soviet leader, the man who swept away the failure and oppression of the Stalinist era, the Russian most favourable to Mr Gomulka's "Polish road to Socialism."

Many Poles feel that the portents for Poland are vaguely ominous.—China Mail Special.

Immunity For The Little Crooks... IF

Washington, June 22. Representative Kenneth Keating said today he would introduce a bill tomorrow to grant "small time" crooks immunity from prosecution in return for their Grand Jury or trial evidence against "big time racketeers."

Mr Keating said his bill would permit Federal Grand Juries to "put the finger on the 100 or so top-level gangsters who are pulling the strings of organised crime."

At present, such immunity can be granted only in cases involving the national security.—U. P. I.

He said three other leaders of the Hungarian revolt—Joseph Kovacs, Sándor Ruzs, and Sándor Karsai, Chairman, President and Deputy Chairman, respectively, of the Revolutionary Workers' Council, which directed the uprising—had been secretly tried and executed and three other secret trials were now taking place.

Death Demanded

One of the trials now going on was of leaders and students of the Kossuth Military Academy. Another was of some doctors who had treated wounded "freedom fighters" and the third was of 47 lawyers, who were accused of calling a special meeting of the Budapest Bar Association which deposed Communist leaders and elected a new executive board.

Dr Fabian said the prosecution was demanding the death sentence for the Chairman of the Bar Association and three of its members.

Mr Ferenc Nagy former Hungarian Prime Minister, told a New York television interview that three more trials are being prepared for Hungarian revolutionary leaders.

He said the present Hungarian regime had little pride in the execution of Mr Imre Nagy. "The Hungarian Government was only a tool in Moscow's hand," he said.

Nevertheless, he urged the expulsion by the United Nations of the Hungarian delegation. He also said the Soviet Union should be given two or three months to comply with resolutions approved by the General Assembly. Then, if she had not complied, Russia should lose her U.N. membership, Mr Nagy said.

Windows Smashed

In New York, a crowd of more than 300 people said to be Hungarian refugees smashed windows at the headquarters of the United Nations. More than 100 policemen were rushed to the scene after violence broke out and three demonstrators were arrested.

Dr Bela Fabian, Chairman of the Federation of Hungarian Political Prisoners, said the trouble started when two women taking part in a protest march were struck by objects thrown from a window of the building occupied by the Soviet delegation.

Fireworks were thrown at the feet of mounted policemen's horses during the outbreak. A total of four policemen were injured and six people arrested, following the demonstration.

In Manchester, three hundred Hungarians marched through the streets here tonight in silent protest against the executions of Imre Nagy and Major-General Pal Maleter.

Father Janos Nameth, religious President of the "Cardinal Mindszenty Club" told the marchers that since the announcement of the execution of the 1956 Hungarian revolution leaders, several thousand workers had been arrested in Hungary and groups of workers and students had stopped work.

He told a gathering of 300 Hungarian refugee demonstrators that 1,500 persons had been arrested at the Nagy factories as well as 5,000 at Csepel and 1,500 at Győr.

In Ottawa, about 200 Hungarian immigrants tonight mourned the execution of their revolutionary leaders in a march past the Russian embassy.

The contents of three bottles of blood-red ink dabbled down the front of the grey stone emblems as the marchers started to chant the Hungarian National Anthem.

The bottle throwing was the only incident.

All the windows in the three-storey building were shattered and the marchers filed past—all agencies.

ALBANIAN RED DROPPED

London, June 23.

The name of Gogo Nushi, a veteran Albanian Communist leader and a first Vice-Premier since 1956, was missing from the latest Albanian Government list issued late last night by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

Nushi was listed as a first Deputy Premier and a member of the state planning committee in 1956 and a member of the Political Bureau (top leadership) of the Albanian Communist Party.

Later he gave up the post of planning chief.

In 1956, he was reported to be third in the Albanian Communist party hierarchy.—Reuter.

Our 'Normal' Weather Will Continue

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

There is no prospect of a break in the present hot humid weather for at least two or three days, the weatherman at the Royal Observatory stated this morning.

If, as the Observatory expects, a depression forms off Shanghai in two or three days' time, Hongkong should have cooler weather similar to the break the Colony experienced a week ago.

Last week the fall in temperature was caused by the interruption of the normal summer monsoon by the Northeast Monsoon. This break was accompanied by thunderstorms and cooler weather.

At six o'clock this morning the Observatory recorded a maximum humidity content in the air of 91 per cent.

The present weather is considered, "normal summer weather."

They Bring Back Makarios Message

Nicosia, June 22.

Bishop Anthimos of Kitium, Archbishop Makarios's deputy in Cyprus, and six Greek Cypriot Mayors arrived tonight by air from Athens.

The Mayors from the main towns of Cyprus and Bishop Anthimos had been consulting with Archbishop Makarios in Athens on the British proposals for Cyprus.

Cypriot Greek sources said the Mayors and Bishop are expected to bring back a special message from Archbishop Makarios to the Cypriot Greek people on their conduct in the immediate future following the rejection of the British proposals in their present form by the Greek Government and the Archbishop.

There had been no solid reaction by the Cypriot Greeks to the British plan since its publication last Thursday, in anticipation of a message from Archbishop Makarios.

And Eoka?

The greatest question mark since the publication of what will be Eoka's decision for the immediate future?

Britain has stipulated that Archbishop Makarios can return to Cyprus "when violence ceases."

Informed observers think his return will be permitted if there are no signs of Greek violence for two or three months.

One of the Mayors, Dr Themistocles Dervis, of Nicosia, told reporters on his arrival here: "The British plan is not for seven years but for ever."

"It brings in the Turkish and Greek government, none of which is necessary for a Cyprus solution," he said. Archbishop Makarios wanted talks between Britain and the Cypriot people alone—"without bringing in foreign governments."—Reuter.

Heavy Rain Floods London Streets

London, June 22. Heavy rain flooded streets and lightning hit several houses during the thunderstorms in London and southern England today.

Lightning knocked down a chimney in London, split a 75-foot fir tree in Middlesex, and struck the weather vane over a 13th century tower of Hendon Parish Church.

Booms in the Belfry were heard and the church electrical system put out of action.

Thousands of holiday makers were soaked by a sudden thunderstorm at Windsor and the final Polo game for the Windsor Cup was cancelled.—Reuter.

Hammar skjold Confers With Nasser

Cairo, June 23.

Mr Dag Hammar skjold, the United Nations Secretary-General, who was in conference with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic about Middle East problems for four hours last night, has a second meeting with Dr Mahmoud Fawzy, the UAR Foreign Minister, here this morning.

No details of the discussions between Mr Hammar skjold and President Nasser were revealed after the meeting, and the Secretary-General had no statement to make.

But diplomatic observers in Cairo said that there were "clear indications" that the UAR was striving to avert Western intervention in the crisis in Lebanon.

Intervention

Mr Hammar skjold's arrival in Cairo yesterday coincided with a weekend of intense diplomatic activity in the city, during which all diplomatic envoys had been summoned to the Foreign Ministry and warned against "foreign intervention" in Lebanon.

The U.N. Secretary-General flew here from Jerusalem, Israel, after conferring with both Jordanian and Israeli authorities about the dispute over the Israeli enclave in the Mount Scopus demilitarised zone outside Jerusalem.

Previously, Mr Hammar skjold visited the headquarters in Beirut of the U.N. observers entrusted by resolution of the Security Council with ensuring that there is "no illegal infiltration of personnel or arms across the Lebanese borders" during the present fierce conflict between the Lebanese government and the opposition.

Mr Hammar skjold is to return to Beirut after his Cairo talks, before flying back to New York.—Reuter.

11 Hurt In Crash

New York, June 22. The engine of a 143-car freight train ploughed into the rear of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway crack George Washington Flyer in the Thurmond Station (West Virginia) today, shoving nearly half way through the railroad Vice-President's private car. Eleven were injured. Railroad Vice-President R. N. Begley and his cook were sleeping in the private car at the end of the train when the accident occurred. Their births were at the front of the car and they emerged shaken but otherwise unharmed.—U.P.I.

Mysterious Disappearance Of American Nun In Europe

Chicago, June 22. An elderly Chicago nun disappeared under mysterious circumstances about 10 days ago aboard a train for Poland traveling through Communist Czechoslovakia, the Chicago Sun-Times reported today.

The missing nun was Sister Cajetan, 72, spiritual head of the Celine League, an organization of Chicago women which raises money for Polish war orphans. She has also headed the Resurrection Day nursery of the Roman Catholic Rectory Order for the past 12 years.

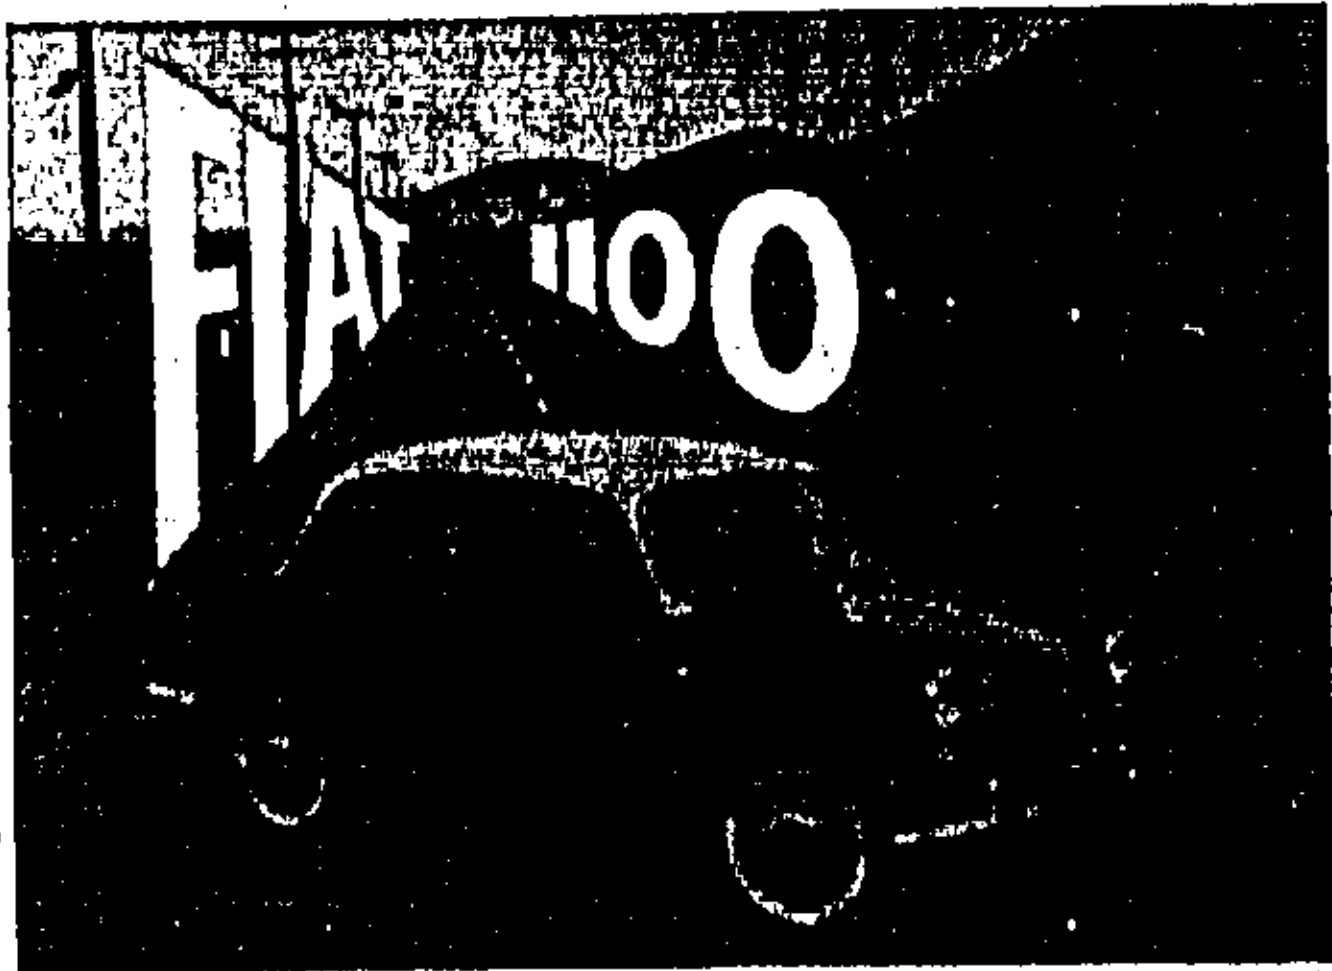

Sister Cajetan left Chicago on April 29 on a pilgrimage with 20 Chicago women for Rome, where they arrived on May 14. All had visas for Poland except Sister Cajetan, the newspaper said.

While other members of her party went to Vienna, and then to Poland, Sister Cajetan waited in Rome. She journeyed to Vienna on June 13, the newspaper said, and boarded a train for Czechoslovakia, Poland, where she hoped to start work to build an orphanage for retarded children.

The Chicago nun never arrived in Poland.

The U.S. Embassies in Warsaw, Prague, Vienna and Rome had been notified of the nun's disappearance, but American officials apparently have been unable to obtain information from the Czech Government.

"We are convinced Sister Cajetan did not vanish in Poland," Mother General Theresa said. "We are certain she disappeared somewhere inside Czechoslovakia through which the train had to pass."—U.P.I.

YUGOSLAV GOVT MAKE IMPORTANT POLICY STEP

Garcia On U.S. TV Meets The Press

New York, June 22. President Carlos Garcia of the Philippines said today that he had "serious" doubt that there would be an East-West summit conference and that he did not believe it would do any good even if one were held.

He told an American television audience that recent Russian acts had convinced him that any summit meeting would be doomed to failure.

"These last tactics of the Russians—imposing conditions that are impossible, the last events in Hungary where revolutionary leaders were executed—they have dampened hopes that a summit conference could have any result," he said.

Mr. Garcia was interviewed by a journalistic panel on the TV show, "Meet the Press." He also said:

"The United States should adopt a 'more imaginative' policy to help Asian and African peoples in their economic struggle."

Algeria should be given her independence because "eventually all countries will have to be free and independent."

There were "neutralists" and critics of America in the Philippines but they constituted a "negligible minority in my country."

There have been no recent incidents that make it imperative for the Philippines and the United States to resume negotiation on U.S. bases and jurisdiction over American servicemen.

In practice there was no such thing as peaceful co-existence with Communism because the Communists were always seeking to subvert other peoples.

The Philippines was trying to "close up ranks" with South Vietnam and was seeking closer economic co-operation.

American loans promised would be used particularly for social improvements in rural areas. The rural electrification programme had a high priority to stimulate home industries.

The American loans would meet initial requirements of his development programme.

Within three years, the country will be self-sufficient in the supply of textile machinery needed for the woolen, linen, silk and viscose fibre industries.

The designing of a whole set of woolen spinning, weaving, printing and dyeing equipment has been completed and will go into mass production next year. In the silk industry a new equipment is already being produced for trial.

The conference also decided to equip new cotton mills with high-speed, automatic, continuous equipment.

The textile machine industry has become one of the most highly developed industries, the agency said. Built on the basis of repair shops, it not only sup-

Tito's Note Will Plead "Not Guilty" Of Imperialism

By George Wolff

Belgrade, June 22. The Yugoslav Government is about to take an important policy step when it will deliver to the Hungarian Government a note, refuting accusations about its role in the 1956 Hungarian crisis.

Diplomatic circles here consider that the note will be a crucial document in answering the present Eastern bloc campaign against Yugoslav action at the time.

Yugoslav President, Marshal Josip Broz Tito, put the final touches to the document when he received his Ambassador to Hungary, Jovo Kaptichitch at Belgrade on Friday. It is believed here.

One well informed source stated today that the note will have much wider objectives than just the denial of the official Hungarian communiqué's accusation that the Yugoslav Embassy had served not only as a refuge for Hungarian Premier, Imre Nagy, between November 2 and 22, 1956 but a command headquarters post for the Hungarian insurrection.

In fact, Belgrade sources consider that the execution of former Premier Imre Nagy and his associates was not the last act in the episode of the repression of the Hungarian revolution in 1956.

They believe that the death sentences in Budapest were the beginning of a sort of vast international "trial" of what the Communists call the "Hungarian counter-revolution."

Yugoslavia would have an important place in the dock, the sources said.

They point out that the Hungarian communiqué published at the time of Nagy's death implied that Nagy had been given refuge, and apparently "found support" in the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest.

As well as the Embassy was implicated in the "counter-revolution" which was still necessary to associate the Yugoslav government with the "imperialists, reactionaries and fascists" who were pilloried by the Communists.

Up to now the Yugoslav government has been careful to avoid all acts or words, in the present crisis, which could lead the Eastern bloc into any action against the country, either in the short or long run.

This time, Budapest's note will contain a plea of "not guilty" by the Tito government against far greater accusations, from the Communist point of view, than deviationism or revisionism.

But if Yugoslavia has already been picked out as the scapegoat of the prosecution which will accompany what is called here Neo-Stalinism, Tito's government can only appeal to the opinion of free peoples and she will not find that in the Eastern bloc.—France-Press.

Black Sea Bathing

Hanover, June 22. The Soviet Union has opened the Black Sea bathing resort of Sochi to foreign tourists, the Froelich Travel Agency said here today.

Froelich, the only West German agency organising trips to the Soviet Union, said that "tourists" the official Soviet travel agency, had also announced the opening of a new tourist route into the Soviet Union.

The new route for automobile travel runs from Helsinki to Moscow, by way of Wilburg, Leningrad and Novgorod.

The Crimean resort can be reached either by the new route or by the old train route to Moscow from Germany, via Warsaw and Smolensk.—France-Press.

'Copters For The Lebanon

United Nations, June 22. The United Nations observation team in the Lebanon is to be provided with four light planes and two helicopters to help carry out its mission, it was disclosed here today.

Announcing this, the U.N. Secretariat said that following the observation team's request, it had urgently requested Sweden to send four two-seater light aircraft to Beirut with six pilots.

The United States had been requested to supply two 11-18 helicopters which are to be piloted by four Norwegian pilots sent by the Norwegian Government.

The Swedish planes are due in Beirut this week. They will be piloted by Swedes.—France-Press.

6 NATIONS ONE GOVT

Strasbourg, June 22. Political leaders of six west European nations today launched a campaign aimed at creating a single government for France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Sponsors of the "Strasbourg Manifesto" pledged themselves to spare no effort to establish a "European Political Authority" for the six nations.

The Political Authority would be the crowning of the coal-steel common market and Euratom communities formed by the six continental nations. Its creation would weld the "six" into one political ensemble.—U.P.I.

Rebel Leaders Fall Out In C. Sumatra Claims Antara

Djakarta, June 22. The rebel leaders in Central Sumatra had fallen out, Antara news agency claimed today.

The agency said this had been learnt from captured papers. Antara said on one side of the rift was the rebel chief of staff in Sumatra, Lieutenant-Colonel Achmad Hussein, and on the other the rebel "Premier," Mr. Sjafruddin Prawiranegara, Mr. Burhanuddin Harahap, Lieutenant-Colonel Dachlan Djambek, and Lieutenant-Colonel Manudhin Simbolon.

Colonel Hussein was supported by officers of the former Central Sumatran military district.

Antara said Colonel Hussein and his men were embittered against Mr. Sjafruddin because of promises that never came true.

Antara said Mr. Sjafruddin had promised that as soon as the central government forces invaded Central Sumatra, the rebel cause would get aid from the United States Seventh Fleet, and from the American "Flying Tigers" in Formosa.

Mr. Sjafruddin had also predicted the economic collapse of the Central Government.

Colonel Jani, Commander of Operations in West Sumatra, said today rebel guerrillas in the province could be eliminated by forces already under his command, Antara reported.—Reuter.

Russians Map Action Stations Off U.S. Coast

Washington, June 22. Russian submarines sighted frequently in U.S. coastal waters were mapping the ocean floor off North America, a weekly news magazine reported today.

The magazine, U.S. News and World Report, said in an article from London that the mapping operation would enable Soviet nuclear submarines to travel submerged from Soviet ports to action stations off the U.S. coast.

The article quoted unnamed Western intelligence sources as giving this explanation. It added: "There, still submerged and undetected, such submarines could launch missiles, with H-bomb warheads anywhere in the United States."

"Underwater action stations" for firing 1,500-mile missiles also must be located with great accuracy, to establish a known location for firing the missiles. This is part of the ocean-floor mapping job.

"The intelligence experts say it will take Soviet submarines and 'trawlers' from five to ten years to complete such a job of mapping American waters," China Mail Special.

Call Parties To Fight 'Revisionism'

The Czechoslovakian Communist Party issued the warning today that the Moscow-led campaign against Yugoslavia would continue until her "revisionists" capitulate, political observers said tonight.

NOW WE HAVE POWDERED ELECTRICITY!

Plymouth, June 22.

Electrical engineering consultant Walter Watson claimed today to have invented powdered electricity.

He said seven years' research went into his discovery which "may revolutionise the use of electricity."

According to Watson, he can get from 40 watts to 25 kilowatts of heat from a powdered electricity unit the size of a half-pint milk bottle. He said the heart of the heating unit, which screws into a standard radiator, is a white powder "developed from precious metals and minerals" and acts as a semi-conductor.

AN OUNCE

The powder is coated on a silica glass tape. Watson said about one-64th of an ounce was needed to power the smallest heater.

Watson demonstrated to reporters by boiling a quarter pint of water with his powder heater in about one hour.

"I don't really know what it is myself," he said. "It behaves as though it were the very stuff of electricity itself."

Watson is looking for a firm to back him.—U.P.I.

ELECTION OF SUCCESSOR TO PRESIDENT CHAMOUN WILL BE A HARD TASK

By PIERRE SOLAN

Beirut, June 22.

The Lebanese Parliament will meet on July 24 to elect a successor to President Camille Chamoun as head of the state.

The 66 members of parliament will vote without debate, as specified by the constitution. The candidate receiving two-thirds of the votes on the first ballot or an absolute majority on subsequent ballots will become President for a six year period ending September 4, 1964, with no re-election possible.

TRANSFER

The transfer of powers from the old to the new president is to take place on the day that Chamoun's six-year term ends. He was elected on September 23, 1952.

A well-established tradition which has apparently not been shaken by current political disorders decrees that the President shall be a Maronite Christian.

The main potential candidates at present seem to be the following: Fouad Ammoun who secured the continuity of Lebanon's foreign policy for almost 15 years as Secretary-General of the Foreign Ministry; Charles Helou, former Foreign Minister and former Ambassador to the Vatican; Alfred Naccache, who was President in 1942; and Raymond Edde, influential member of the Parliament's Foreign Affairs Committee.

GOOD CHANCE

Former Minister Hamid Francis would have a good chance since he stepped down to permit Chamoun's election in 1952, but his health will probably keep him out of politics.

General Fudh Chubb would certainly get all the votes, but he believed he should devote himself exclusively to his job as army chief-of-staff and maintain complete neutrality among the factions and clans which divide Lebanon.

It was believed that the choice of candidates would be

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION ENDS IN FREE-FOR-ALL

Boston, June 22.

The Massachusetts Democratic State convention ended in a free-for-all and police intervention early today, after delegates had spent 14 hours nominating candidates for State offices.

The fighting broke out after nine hours of wrangling between delegates over the selection of a candidate for Attorney-General.

About 300 delegates surged toward the speakers' platform, shouting and hissing.

POLITICAL FOES

Three candidates, long-standing political foes, were up for nomination, and after three inconclusive ballots their supporters backed up their arguments with shouting and yells of anger, after one group claimed the vote-counting was being rigged.

As fighting delegates surged across the floor of the convention hall, extra police were rushed into the building to reinforce overwhelmed officers who had been on duty there.—Reuter.

Bishop Bars Couple From Communion For 6 Months

Reason: Husband-To-Be A Divorcee

Leeds, June 22.

A Church of England bishop, who ordained a young man on probation for a sexual offence against a boy, has told an engaged couple they will be barred for six months from communion when they wed because the husband-to-be is a divorcee.

Dr George A. Chase, a bachelor Bishop of Ripon, also ruled that the couple must give up their voluntary work at their church.

They are Mr Jack Godman, 42, and Miss Nancy Linton, 41, who worked and worshipped at Saint Matthews Church, Holbeck, Leeds, since childhood.

Mr Godman who has two sons, aged 12 and nine, was divorced from his wife on March 10, 1955. He was the innocent party.

Told Vicar

The Bishop's ruling takes effect from August 30 when the couple wed at a Leeds register office.

Mr Godman said today: "This business is causing us both a lot of distress. I told the vicar that I intended to remarry in the register office and the Bishop of Ripon was notified."

"We saw the bishop a few days ago and he was very nice but he told us we would be barred from communion. I was not aware that there was a church ruling on this matter and there are a number of people who attend church who feel very angry about it."

Impossible

He said because of the Church of England's attitude that a divorced person should not be allowed to remarry in church he and his fiancée realized that marrying at their own church was "impossible."

Mr Godman and his fiancée are both teachers at the Church Sunday School. He also leads a pack of wolf cubs and produces and writes the annual children's pantomime which has raised hundreds of pounds for the church in recent years.

His fiancée is treasurer of the churches' ladies club, a chorister and a deputy organist.

Last month, when the bishop ordained as a minister a 25-year-old student, who a year ago was put on probation for two years at Levens, Sussex, for indecently assaulting a boy of nine, there was criticism from Britain's national press.

Today, the Sunday Express said: "Among thousands of loyal members of the Church of England there will be anger and disquiet at what goes on in the diocese of Ripon."

Repugnant

The Church of England's doctrine on homosexuality and divorce was "repugnant to the vast majority of the nation," the Sunday Express said. "If the bishops do not alter that doctrine then Parliament which has the power must alter it for them." — China Mail Special.

Poor Facilities, Slovenly Effort

SWEEPING INDICTMENT OF U.S. EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

New York, June 22.

THE Rockefeller Brothers Fund issued a sweeping indictment of America's educational system today, charging existence of poor educational facilities, slovenly educational effort and general failure to meet the stern demands of the times.

A panel of top educators, who made a special study for the fund, called for a revolution in education in the next 10 to 15 years, with an increase in spending from the present $14 billion a year to at least $30 billion by 1967.

The educators bluntly warned that whether the American people like it or not, Federal aid to education is here to stay. They also served notice that the theory that all men are created equal must be abandoned when it comes to education.

Americans will have to accept the fact, the panel said, that gifted students must be given special opportunities and challenges and that talented teachers must be rewarded beyond the run-of-the-mill level.

The report, fourth issued by the Fund's special studies project dealing with America at mid-century, charged that educators and employers have put a false emphasis on the value of a college diploma and that too many school systems have fallen into a "lock step" of automatically promoting every student every year.

It said there has been a "wholesale" waste of talent in failure to give ample educational and professional opportunities to negroes.

The crisis in our scientific education is not an invention of the newspapers, or scientists, or the Pentagon, the panel said. "It is a real crisis. The USSR is not the cause of the crisis. The cause of the crisis is our brain-taking movement into a new technological era. The USSR has served as a rude stimulus to awaken us to that reality.

"...It will not be enough to meet the problem grudgingly or with a little more money. The nation's need for good education is immediate, and good education is expensive. That is a fact which the American people have never been quite prepared to face.... We must build for the future in education as daringly and aggressively as we have built other aspects of our national life in the past."—U.P.I.

All You Can Carry Away Is The American Motto

New York.
THE origin of the self-service revolution in America has been traced to a grocer's shop in California during the Great Depression. The grocer tried to boost trade by advertising out-to-the-door prices.

To save every cent he dispensed with shop assistants and let his customers help themselves from the crates themselves from the crates in the goods were delivered in. The boxes were just spread on the floor.

It was crude, but business boomed. And from that improvised beginning has come a staggering transformation in shopping habits of the American housewife.

Today two-thirds of the food sold here is sold through super-markets—a word which has displaced "self-service store." And the leading chain of super-markets, the A and P, is now the biggest retail organisation in the world, with a turnover in the past year of between 4,000 and 5,000 million dollars.

By J. W. M. THOMPSON

COLOSSAL

A typical super-market today bears no resemblance to that early service-yourself venture. It is a huge air-conditioned building set in a prairie of car-parking space and with a colossal variety of goods on display.

There will be up to five thousand different items of food on sale laid out in row upon row in specially designed show cases.

These include batteries of deep freezers and cabinets of foodstuffs at refrigerator temperature while being completely open in front. (The trick is done with an "invisible curtain" of cold air).

The housewife usually goes to the super-market to buy a whole week's supply of food. She may load up two or three of the wire barrows which customers are provided with.

What accounts for the furious growth of the self-service idea in America? Cheapness of course is the big attraction; in a country of high wages shop assistants are a heavy charge.

PROFITS

Then, the super-markets deal in volume and rely on small profits. The A and P chain made a profit of only nine-tenths of one per cent on every dollar spent in its 4,218 stores last year. The others work to similar margins.

After cheapness comes convenience. The super-markets sell every kind of food under one roof. So American women equipped with refrigerators and deep freezers to store their food in, tend cars to collect it in, can buy in bulk at one place.

The development of America as an "automobile civilisation" has helped too. Around the big cities vast new residential suburbs have been built without any of the little local shops of the older districts. Instead each area has one great shopping centre which the housewives visit by car.

With this set-up the latest trend was inevitable—the spread of self-service from foodstuffs to a vast range of other goods. More and more of these huge shops are now opening new departments to cater for as many of their customers' needs as possible.

So now in many self-service stores, a shopper can buy car tyres, radio and TV sets, medicines, pots and pans, light garden furniture, gramophones, records, books and magazines, clothes, cosmetics, indeed almost anything that is portable.

So the whole trend is towards bigger and bigger stores selling more and more kinds of merchandise. The only visible limit to what can be sold seems to be the sheer physical capacity of the customer to carry his purchases away. And even there the American shopper can be surprising.

One super-market proprietor claims to have disposed of a stuffed African lion on self-service basis. But I doubt whether that signifies a serious trend.

I say the Tories will win the next election

WHEN Mr Harold Macmillan steps elegantly from behind the Speaker's Chair to take his place in the House of Commons, he can be sure of a loud bay of pleasure from the Tory benches.

—by
ROBERT EDWARDS

Their cheering will signify much more than joy that B.O.A.C. has taken good care of him and brought him safely home; much more, too, than pleasure at the success of Mr Macmillan's visit, which they believe can bring nothing but good to Britain.

Above all, they will be applauding him because they will be seeing this suave, intellectual, and imperturbable man in an entirely new light.

Not simply as the best Prime Minister they have. But as a man of destiny. They are now certain that he is the leader who can win the next General Election for the Tories.

So Certain

What a transformation this is. A few weeks ago only the most incredibly optimistic Tories expected anything but a shattering defeat when the Government went to the country.

Indeed, so certain were many Tory M.P.s of disaster that some of those in marginal seats have been flustered like frightened budgerigars in search of safer perches.

Now, suddenly, the cries of "woe, woe" are stilled. And instead every Tory face bears the radiant beam of utter confidence.

They are sure this is a good Government. And that Mr Macmillan is becoming a popular Prime Minister.

How do they deduce the second proposition? Not only because the success of his American trip has obviously served him well in Britain.

Not only because he is the only Front Bench leader on either side of the House with a television personality—when he rejects his advisers' counsel to be solemn and safe.

But, in particular, because of last week's by-election results.

Encouraging

There is no doubt that there are still many sulking Tories in the country who would not switch their allegiance to any other party but remain in an abating mood. Nevertheless, there was far less evidence of this hostility last week than there has been since the tide turned against the Tories at Tonbridge two years ago.

The results showed two other encouraging developments for them:

1 The swing to the Liberals is rapidly on the wane. Soon it is likely to disappear altogether.

2 Despite this, there has been no gain in the Socialist votes.

This, then, is clear. IF MR MACMILLAN CAN GET MOST OF THE SULKING TORIES BACK INTO THE POLLING BOOTHS AT THE GENERAL ELECTION, HE CAN BE PRIME MINISTER UNTIL 1955.

Will he succeed? Well, look at the Weston-super-Mare result. There a brilliant organisation and able candidate left the Tories with a majority only 1,106 votes fewer than they had last time.

Satisfaction

What accounts for the subtle but perceptible move of public opinion towards the Tories?

Undoubtedly, there is immense public satisfaction that the slump has passed Britain by.

Every other Western nation, except France, has been affected. But here, instead of dole queues, there has actually been a slight increase in production. Whatever has produced this miracle, the Government will get much of the credit.

Now note further evidence of British prosperity that is bound to have its influence at the General Election—in the export field. The latest returns show a 45% increase in car sales to America, while American car manufacturers are unable to sell their own products.

And in Canada this year 40,000 British cars are expected to be sold. That would be double the 1952 figure, a truly astonishing advance.

Quite apart from these and the general export figures, there is much other evidence that Britain's boom will continue. Factories are being built and expanded throughout the land. Investment in plant and machinery has risen appreciably over the last few months.

The biggest

To match this optimism in both private and nationalised industries, the Government has launched what Mr Richard Nugent, Parliamentary Secretary at the Ministry of Transport, describes boldly as "the biggest road-building programme in England since the days of the Romans."

Be sure that the Tories will crow to good effect on all these counts. And emphasise especially that they are providing many more school places than the Socialists. At this moment there are 63 new grammar schools under construction.

Cordial

Next turn to foreign affairs. What can the Tories boast about here? They will claim that we are on amicable terms with all the European countries, including Western Germany, and also France, a cordial achievement.

At Mr Macmillan's instigation both Dr Adenauer, the West German leader, and the Italian President have been received in London.

In the East our relations with Russia are cordial, and although China declines to send an ambassador to the Court of St James's, we have no quarrel with that nation.

In the Middle East we are now reconciled with the United States, owing to Mr Macmillan's industry and his personal contacts with Eisenhower.

And there is undoubtedly a new spirit in the Empire. The Dominions are now co-operating with Britain in such a friendly fashion that trade is directed to us as a policy decision.

No such attitude to Britain has prevailed for many years.

Extinguished

Who can fail to recognise the cumulative effect that all I have listed will have upon the elections? But the biggest asset that the Tories have is not the merits that they may choose to claim but the complete failure of Mr Hugh Gaitskell as leader of the Socialists.

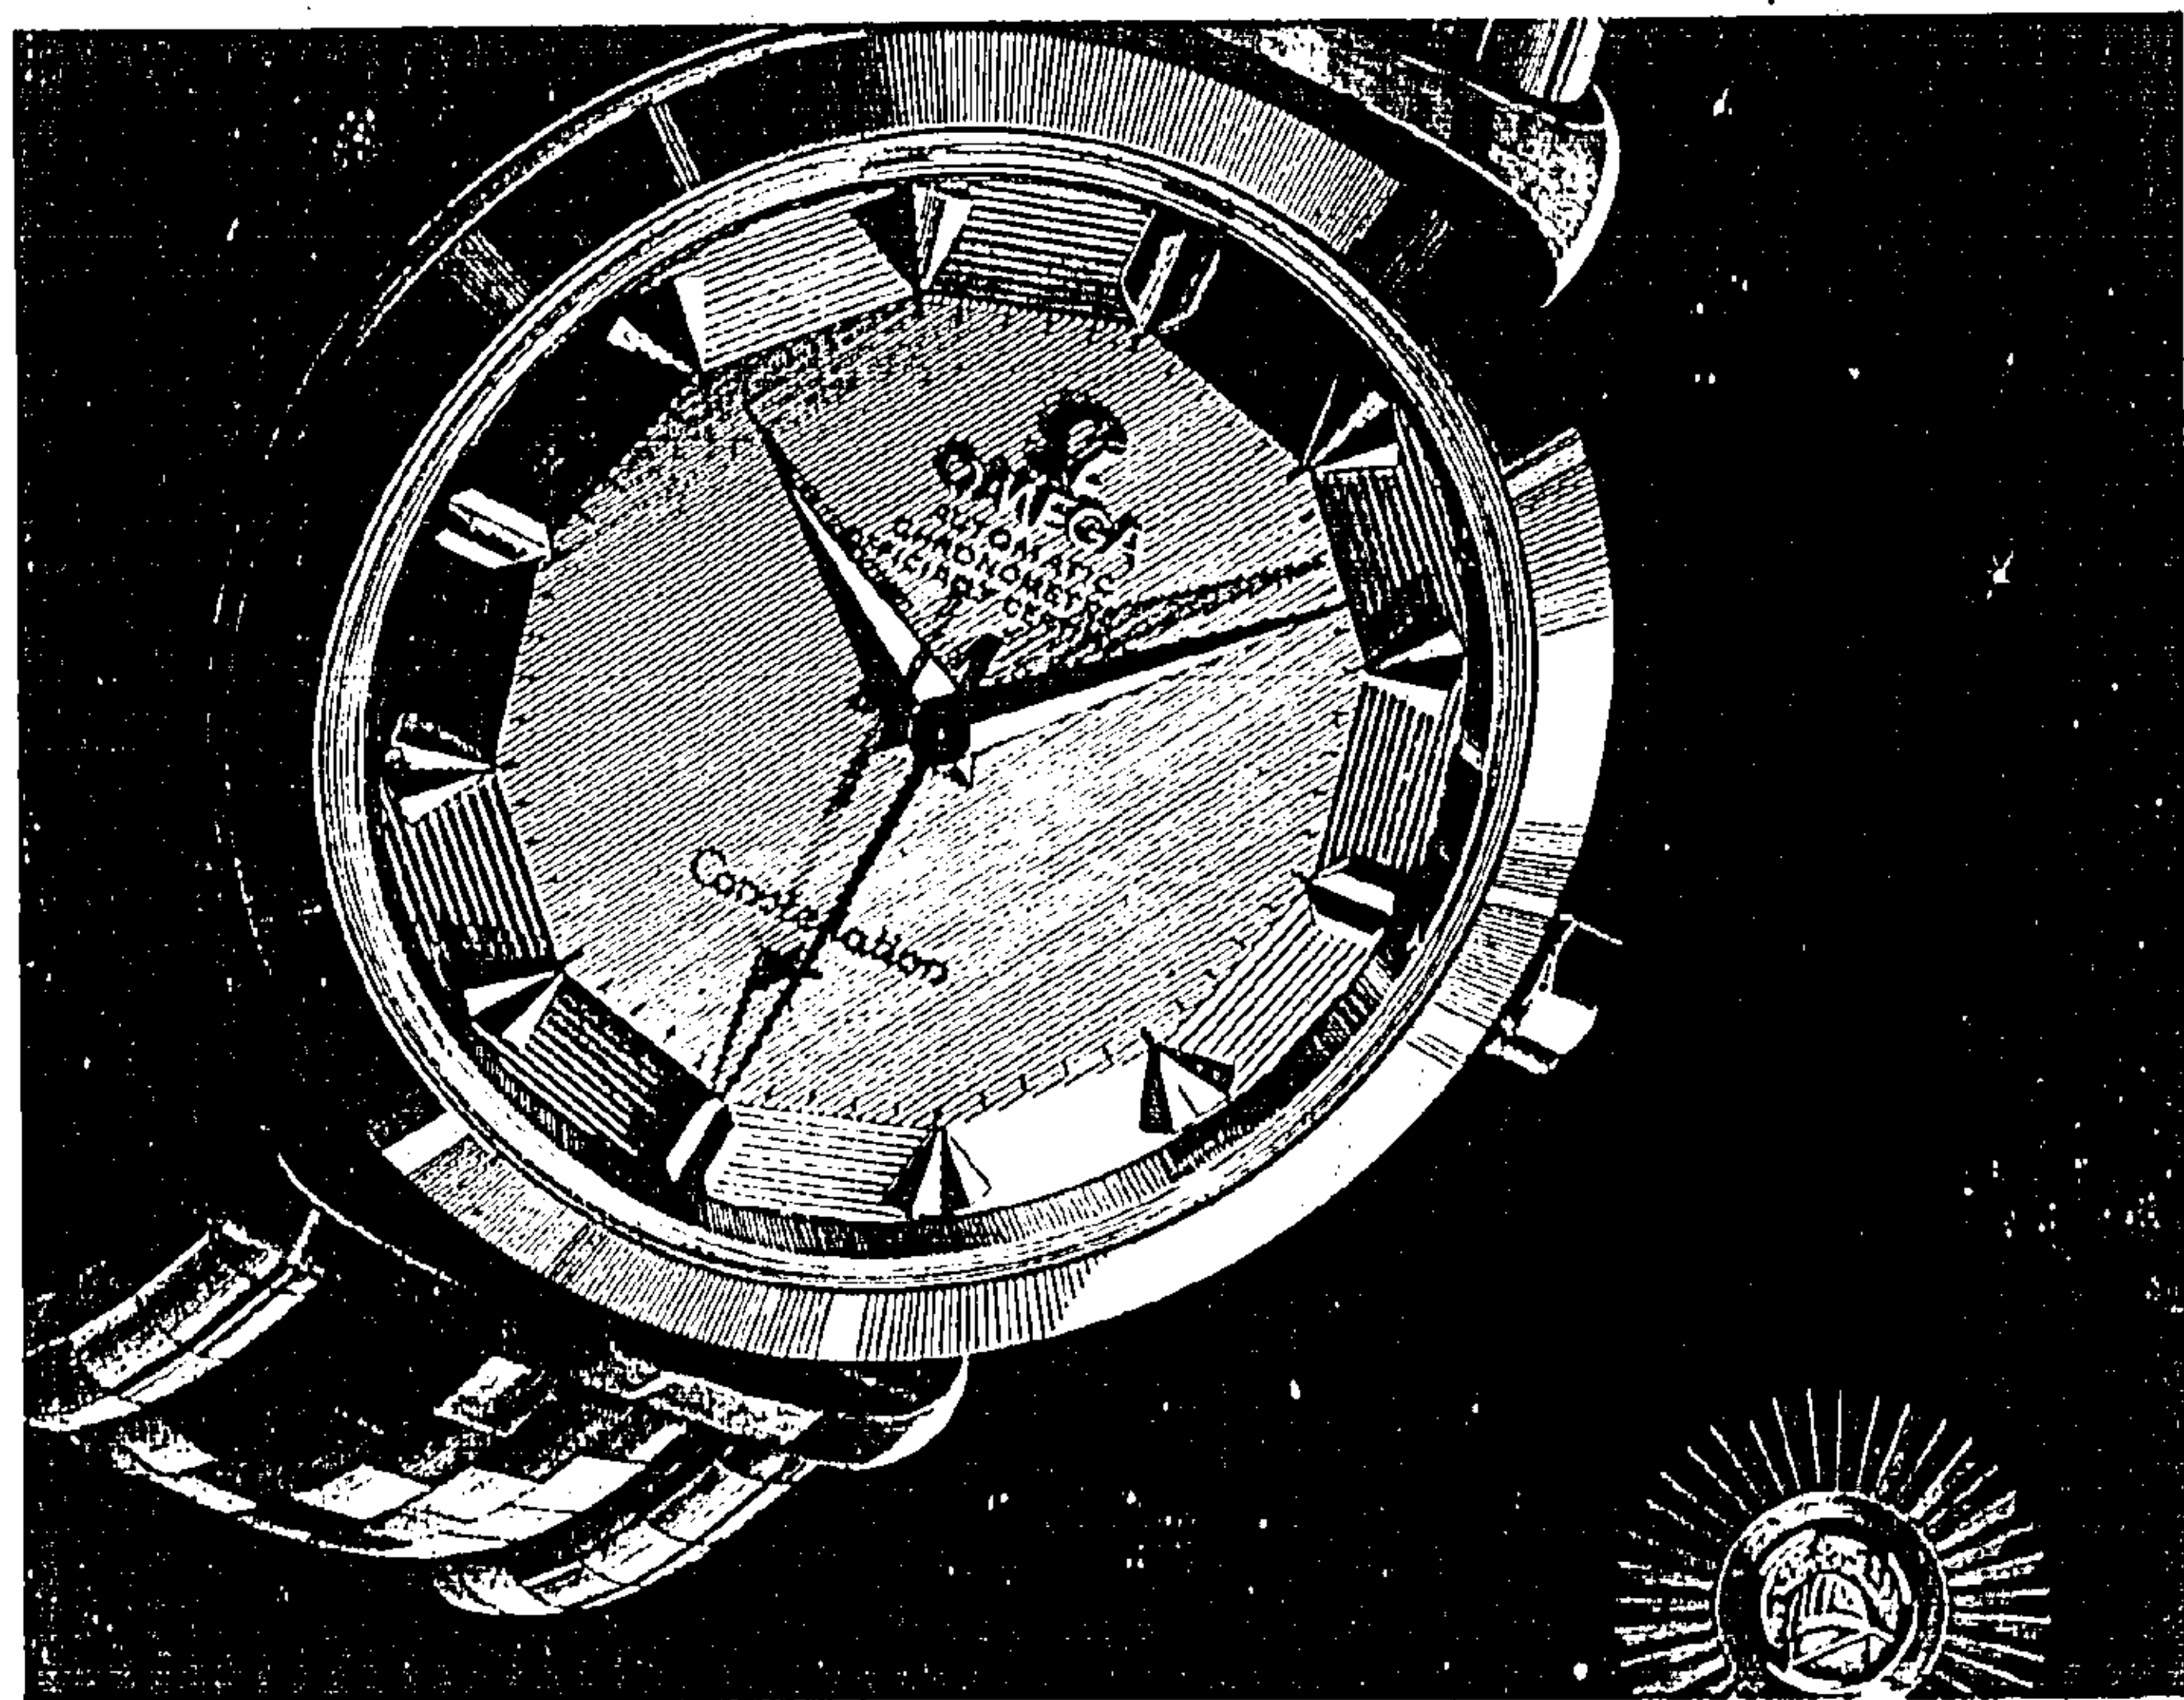

No word in his favour: can you now hear from Socialist M.P.s?

If they do not believe in him, how can they expect the country to do so? He has extinguished every flicker of crusading zeal from the Socialist rank and file—except among those led by Mr Michael Foot, who passionately oppose his and Mr Aneurin Bevan's policy on the hydrogen bomb.

If the Socialists changed their leader the Tories might still have grounds for pessimism.

But Mr Gaitskell will stay where he is. And so, I predict, will Mr Macmillan.

At 10, Downing Street.

The Omega Constellation is one of man's finest efforts to duplicate, on a miniature scale, the inexorable regularity of the heavenly bodies as they pass across a telescope's field of vision.

The engineering experience that made possible a watch like the Constellation was acquired the hard way: in the accuracy contests of the Geneva and Neuchâtel observatories. Here, each year, the finest Swiss watches are pitted against the astronomical clock. Here, over the years, Omega has won an as yet unequalled series of precision victories.

The men who made possible these victories are responsible also for the Constellation. In everyday life, on your wrist, their skill in designing and regulating watches results in a degree of accuracy that enables each Constellation to receive an official Chronometer Certificate.

To this accuracy Omega engineers have added the luxury of self-winding. The Constellation translates each flick of your wrist into steady timekeeping energy. Worn daily, it never needs winding.

Down to its last hour marker—cut, polished and mounted like a precious gem—the Constellation is designed and engineered for the man whose minutes matter, whose seconds count, whose decisions carry weight.

Bid Reveals North's Queen

NOT only does today's hand produce 13 tricks at either no-trump, hearts or clubs, but it should be a cinch to arrive at the grand slam in one of the suits. Duplicate bridge players ought to be able to get to the maximum no-trump contract.

Nevertheless, when it was played in the recent San Angelo Sectional only three pairs managed to get to the top spot.

The bidding by one pair, Mrs. Bob Powers and Mrs. W. S. Hunter, was most interesting.

and illustrates a novel use of the Blackwood Convention. Mrs. Hunter chose to respond three clubs and show her strength immediately. Hence, she only bid four hearts at her second turn.

Then Mrs. Powers took over. Her four no-trump asked for aces and when her partner showed three of them, Mrs. Powers counted 13 tricks at no-trump provided that she would be able to run the club suit.

She bid five no-trump to ask for kings and when Mrs. Hunter responded six clubs to show no kings, Mrs. Powers bid the grand slam in no-trump with complete confidence. Her partner just had to have the queen of clubs and the club suit had to be solid.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Paris, June 22. Paris fashion salons are buzzing with excitement as leading couturiers, hairdressers, beauty specialists and jewelers prepare for the debutantes' ball in the historic Orangerie at Versailles Palace on the night of July 11.

It will be the "Ball of the Dollar Debts." Now that the British Court has abolished its traditional presentations of American debutantes, the young girls of the United States have turned to the French nobility to receive them into society.

A hundred of them are due to fly in on July 10 with their parents or chaperons. Originally, only 200 were invited to make the five-day trip but many declined because of the political unrest in France.

Paris couturiers are taking time off from preparing their Autumn and Winter collections to create an elaborate group of new ball gowns for the event.

The Directress of the Maison Christian Dior said there had been a rush of orders for sumptuous new ball gowns. But judging by overall trends from all the Paris designers one thing seems clear. Short evening dresses will far outnumber floor-length models. Nationalities at the ball will be distinguished by the girls' dresses. American debutantes will be dressed in traditional white, while the French girls will wear ball gowns in pastel shades.

Six hundred French youths, recruited from France's top schools and military academies, will be in attendance. There will also be a few young British and American officers stationed here.

The French debutantes will act as hostesses to the American girls and patrician demure that the French boys must dance with the visitors first.

The ball will be the first Franco-American event of its kind, if it is successful it may become an annual event.

The Duke de Brissac, Chairman of the French Committee for the ball, is confident it will be a success. Last week he asked this assurance to Miss Mary-Stuart Montague Price, President of the American Debutante Society. "Everything is O.K. in France. The ball is attracting great interest here," China Mail Special.

Look Cool, Feel Cool

"Wizardry" . . . practised by ROSE MARIE REID to put every inch you own in just the right places. A swimwear, shirred flexibly along a slender "V", designed to adjust, just so, to the length of your torso. Its wide straps follow fashion's dictates and lend controlling support. And can, of course, be tucked away for sunning. For those problems (too thin, too heavy, torso too long or too short) the "Magic Length" silhouette performs the flexible sorcery of perfect fit.

A hat to flatter any fair lady. It was worn at Ascot and is in white crinoline with a black velvet edging. A trimming of ten roses completes the elegant picture.

Summer Suggestion

WEATHER is often a drawback to beauty. Warm days ahead, for example, will present any number of special problems.

LOOK COOL

How can a girl look cool when the feels as though she's had a personal dose of the scorched earth policy? It's practically impossible but it can be done.

Here's how:

1. Think cool. Don't let your mind dwell on how hot it is. How unhappy you are. Concentrate on more pleasant subjects.

2. Dress wisely. Wear comfortably loose clothes in lightweight fabrics. Choose materials that will keep their freshness, won't wrinkle easily.

3. Shower once a day and, on real scorches, twice. Stand under a medium spray—not too hot, not too cold. Dry off leisurely. Don't rub yourself off with a Turkish towel; rather, blot yourself dry.

4. Do follow your bath by patting on talcum. It will help you glide into girldom and slipp.

FRAGRANCE AIDS

5. Use fragrance aids frequently. They'll surround you with a cloud of scent that will help you forget the heat. When the going gets really humid, spray eau de toilette on wrists, neck, in the crook of the elbow. It will make you feel cooler.

6. Don't rush. Slow your pace down. Running around at full speed will just leave you hotter and limper.

7. If possible, stay out of that noonday sun. As the song says, it's only for mad dogs and Englishmen. Schedule errands for early morning or late afternoon when it's apt to be cooler.

YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . By STELLA

MONDAY, JUNE 23

BORN today, you are changeable, moody and mercurial in temperament. You drive on a continual change and are happiest when on the move. You men, especially, will have a rough time settling down for you will want to visit all the far places of the earth. You women are natural housewives and are a little more inclined to be stay-at-homes. But since you have the facility of making any place you live a home, you may do your share of living in a trunk, too.

The stars have given you many talents but you are so versatile that you may have difficulty in selecting one occupation that will satisfy you for any length of time. You are far too inclined to fit from one thing to another, beginning half a dozen jobs and perhaps not finishing one.

This is a habit you must correct if you are to become outstanding in any one area of expression. You have a strong, firm will once you have your mind or heart set on something, but it takes a lot of "willpower" to get you to exert yourself.

Your intentions are keen and you often sense things long before they happen. You women are apt to be somewhat timid, but you have a magnetic charm that attracts people. You men, especially, have a natural talent in music and literature. You have a sharp wit. Guard against hectoring!

Among those born on this date were: Irvin S. Cobb, humorist; Gladys Beatty, composer; Henry Gray, portrait painter; John R. Steedman, educator and statesman; and the Duke of Windsor.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 21)—Continue a business project begun toward the end of last week. You should be highly successful in it.

LIBRA (Sept. 22-Oct. 21)—Put your best foot forward today when meeting new contacts. Something exciting can come of it if you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22-Nov. 21)—Make the right decision. Don't let yourself be dissuaded against your own instincts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)—Take care of business details. Accuracy now will prevent a profit later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)—If planning a vacation trip, this can be a good day to start, especially if you are going to the south.

Dinner With King Nep smaller. He was not much bigger than a large-sized peanut.

"We haven't seen King Nep in so long, we really should go down and visit him," Hanid the Shadow Girl with the Tuxedo About Name told her brother Knarf.

It was a very sunny morning, warm and springlike. Bees were buzzing. Sparrows were chirping. Bees were scurrying back and forth in their blue dungers with bees and rakes and shovels over their shoulders.

Long, long ago, King Nep was very important. His full name was King Neptune, and he was Ruler of the Seven Seas. But now hardly anyone remembered him or thought about him and he had grown smaller. and

Important Ruler

Long, long ago, King Nep was very important. His full name was King Neptune, and he was Ruler of the Seven Seas. But now hardly anyone remembered him or thought about him and he had grown smaller. and

Sitting On A Pebble

Presently, after going down the hill and walking through the Pine Tree Grove, Knarf and Hanid reached the Willow Tree. To their surprise and delight, they found King Nep sitting on a white pebble at the edge of the brook, fishing with a dandelion stalk for a fishing rod and a bit of spider web for a line.

"Good morning, my dears," he greeted them. "It's wonderful to have you come like this. Will you stay for dinner? I'm serving fish. We'll make the dinner as soon as I catch the fish."

Hanid was going to say that it might be better if he didn't invite anyone to dinner until he had caught the fish. But at that moment, there was a tug on the line.

"You've got one! You've got one!" cried Knarf.

King Nep lifted the fishing pole over his head. Sure enough, he had caught a beautiful little minnow.

Not Very Big

"Not very big," remarked Hanid, after King Nep had put the minnow in the basket.

"We'll make it fit," said King Nep. "Besides," he said, "I'm expecting some more company. I'm expecting my brother Mars."

"Oh, I didn't know you had a brother," said Hanid.

"Yes, that's Brother Mars all right," King Nep said. "Coming in his chariot as usual. He'll be here any minute now."

And sure enough, down across the tiny road that ran across the meadow, came Mars in his chariot.

Mars was the size of a mouse. His chariot was like a matchbox. His four horses, galloping and rearing and galloping, were like four white mice.

It was a wonderful fish dinner. The minnow was more than enough for all of them.

Craigengower Score Thrilling 3-2 Win Over Kowloon Cricket Club In Week's Feature Game

By ROBERT TAY

Highlight of the lawn bowls League games during the week-end was the thrilling 3-2 win scored by Craigengower Cricket Club "A" over erstwhile first division League leaders Kowloon Cricket Club at Happy Valley.

There were many who thought that the Valley Club twelve were extremely lucky in snatching the decision from their Mainland rivals but on the run of the game they fully deserved, in my opinion, their slender victory.

The Kowloonites were on the whole the better team in the first half of the game, but faltered at the stage where it mattered most—the second half and more especially the last few bowls.

Craigengower Cricket Club owed their triumph to their brilliant and spirited fightback in the second half of the match during which two of their rinks skipped by George Hong Choy and S. L. Leonard played a notable part.

After being down on two rinks and a total of 11 shots on the aggregate, they rallied back and forced the match to a photo-finish. It was only on the last two bowls of the game that the issue was decided.

Biggest 'If'

In a game of many 'ifs', the biggest 'if' was probably in the second last bowl of the match. At that stage, George Hong Choy's four, had given the Valley Club a tremendous lead by out-bowling KCC's J. Tang, D. C. Synnors, J. Chubb and T. E. Baker to the tune of 30-18.

W. Baker, S. Y. Doe, A. M. Alves and J. S. Landolt covered part of the deficit for the Kowloon side by fully capitalising on an error by Craigengower's skip, A. E. Coates.

On the 19th bowl, Coates' four were lying four shots, when Coates pushed up an opposing bowl for the second shot to register only a single and still trail behind by 12-14.

Landolt's four struck back on the slightly upset Craigengower four with a three and a four on the last two bowls to end up with a 21-12 score, and cut down the Craigengower aggregate lead to three shots.

On the third rink, the KCC four of O. R. Sadick, C. L. Stapleton, F. R. Kermant and W. Hong Sling after leading 3-0, were 2-1 down to 1-2.

The consensus of opinion was that on the second last bowl

The Crucial Head

Then came the crucial head. The KCC four were lying one shot when Craigengower No. 3 C. C. Ma sprung the jack about a yard behind and towards the left to tie the two shots. Both these, however, were a little more than a yard away, little high on the farched side.

Hong Sling with his first bowl drew in the first shot, inside a front-wood from the backhand to finish up about one and half feet in front of the jack and slightly to the right.

Stanley Leonard did better than that with his first delivery by drawing outside the front-wood to end up about six inches behind the jack.

KCC No. 3 Kermant then called for a forehand shot from his skip to take up his own bowl or rest the back-wood. After a great deal of discussion, Hong Sling played rather reluctantly the shot called for and missed, going yards behind.

Leonard then came up with a brilliant match-winning shot. He cleanly played through the opposing second shot to register a count of four for his side, and not only take his own score to 20-20, but also give his side an aggregate lead of three shots.

On the last head, Kermant sliced the jack to one side after opponents had lain two shots and in the drawing tussle between the two skips, Hong just managed to beat Leonard to it by a measure.

The consensus of opinion was that on the second last bowl

Hong Sling should have followed Leonard on the backhand with a drawing shot up to the shot wood. For one reason, he could easily follow the green. Secondly even if he failed he would have drawn in a third shot and Leonard would not have been able to score a four on this head.

Hong Sling's four, however, maintained their top position in the skips' table with this 21-12 victory, but their triumph would have been complete had they been able to lead KCC to a 4-1 win. This was the more regrettable considering that they played a grand game in the first half. Hong Sling and Kermant especially were in brilliant form and Sadick and Stapleton gave better than their average performances.

Among the Craigengower four, skip Leonard put up a heroic display against superior odds. With only W. C. Young at lead, giving him any reasonable support, he staged almost a lone battle in the front half. No. 2 F. O. Madar and No. 3 C. C. Ma, however, came into their own in the second half and enabled the four to stage one of the most brilliant recoveries ever seen in the league so far.

Again Unlucky

On the remaining rink, Tommy Baker's KCC four were again unlucky for the fourth time or so to draw an end rink. Pitted against F. R. Ragi, W. C. Ogley, E. G. Barros and G. Hong Choy, they were never able to reproduce their last week's form.

Except for John Tang, they were all playing well below form. On the Craigengower side, Ragi, making one of his rare appearances, put up a creditable game. W. C. Ogley at No. 2 gave fine support throughout the game, but the key man in the CCC four was skip George Hong Choy, who gave one of his finest performances so far to a 30-12 win over the KCC rink.

On the remaining rink, KCC's four of W. Baker, S. Y. Doe, A. M. Alves and J. S. Landolt each enjoyed slight edge over his respective opponent. The game would have been much closer but for a bad lapse by the CCC four on the last two bowls when they lost a three and a four.

The other matches played were featured by two seven scores. One was in the first division and this was recorded by C. Rosa-Pereira's Recreio "A" four against W. Williamson's KBCG four. The other seven was scored by Craigengower's third division four of Y. T. Cheng, J. W. Lee, P. W. Quickmore and J. A. Fox against Taihook's L. Lowrie, A. Crickton, J. Allan and J. Dewar.

CASUALTIES IN LE MANS RACE

One Dead And Five Injured In Auto-Racing Classic Won By Gendebien And Hill In A Ferrari

Le Mans, June 22.

The Belgian-American combination of Olivier Gendebien and Phil Hill in an Italian Ferrari won the classic 24 hours Le Mans automobile race on a rain-soaked track here today.

This gruelling endurance test for men and machines was marred by the death of French driver Jean Brousseau. Five other drivers were slightly injured in accidents caused by the slippery track. Only 20 teams completed the race out of the 55 starters.

The track was only dry for eight hours of the 24 hours of racing. The British ace, Stirling Moss, in the English Aston-Martin, set a furious pace from the start in an attempt to smash the records set up last year by the British Vanguards and to grind the rest of the "Big Boys", including Jaguar and Ferrari, down to a standstill.

But the pace he set was too fast for his own Aston-Martin and a broken piston forced the leader out after two hours of racing. Gendebien and Hill took turns to take and keep their Ferrari in the lead throughout the rest of the race.

Creditable Third

The British brothers, P. and A. Whitehead, saved Aston-Martin's honour by finishing second with the French ace, Jean Behra, and Germany's H. Hermann bringing in their 1,588 c.c. Porsche in for a creditable third, behind the more powerful Ferrari and Aston-Martin.

De Tomaso and D. Collin in their 748 c.c. OSCA won the index performance race.

Jaguar's remaining hopes of winning or taking an honourable place were smashed when Hamilton in one of the two remaining Jaguars skidded out of a bend and crashed just as a violent storm broke out at 11:30 hours (local time) this morning. Hamilton, who suffered slight leg injuries, had opened up his Jaguar in an attempt to close the two top gap between himself and the Gendebien-Hill Ferrari.

Record-Breaking

He was teamed up with I. Bueb, who won last year's Le Mans in a Jaguar, with R. Flockhart in the record-breaking distance of 4,397.20 miles.

Although Gendebien and Hill were unable to break this record with their total distance of 4,101.93 kilometres, they broke the record for the "D" Class (2,000 to 3,000 c.c.)

The previous record for the "D" class was 4,018.003 kilometres, set up by an Aston-Martin in 1956.

NO UPSETS IN STANLEY SHIELD SOCCER MATCHES FOOTBALL CLUB GIVES TWO WALKOVERS

The annual competition for a rather battered old relic of less happy days started at the Club Stadium on Saturday evening when the 1958 edition of the Stanley Shield got under way.

The Shield has a close association with many great names in Colony sport, whose indomitable spirit set the pattern for the annual charity tournament.

The crude emblem of courage which is now competed for was originally carved by them while in captivity in Stanley Camp.

The crowd on Saturday evening was a disappointment particularly as both South China and KMB had all-star Sevens in action.

The first night's play provided no upsets and all the favoured sides got through to the next round.

The games finished as follows: —RAF received a walk-over from Club "A"; South China 4; CMB 0; Army "A" 3; Police "A" 1; KMB 0; Navy 0; Kwong Wah 3; Police "B" 1; Aircraft 3; RIL 1; CAA 1; Caroline Hill 0; Army "B" 3; Taihook 0.

Individual Stars

The individual stars of the first evening's play were Lau Chi-lam who scored all the six goals for his side against the Royal Navy; Ho Cheung-yau who was in excellent form for South China, and McKenzie who gave a scintillating display for the Army.

The first round ties were continued at the Club Stadium again last night and seven of the scheduled games were played.

For the second time in two nights Club conceded a walk-over to their opponents. This is a sad state of affairs and Kitchee "B" are now in the second round through the failure of Club "B" to turn out against them.

The crowd got 24 goals for their money. Seven of them were scored by Sling Tso "A" in their games against S & S Tamar and six by a powerful Kitchee "A" team against Tung Wah (Red).

Those who remember the marathon between Police and KMB last season, got almost a repeat last night when St. Joseph's and Prisons had to toll through two periods of extra time before reaching a decision.

The sides shared four goals but it was not until the second extra stanza that the Saints forced their plucky opponents to give away a corner and so moved into the next round by the narrowest possible margin.

The little Rediffusion side put up a surprisingly good show in the first game of the evening against Jardines from the First Division.

The seniors had to fight every inch of the way after getting a quick goal and were glad to move on by a solitary counter. Lo Kwok-tai was the star performer in Sling Tso's goal against S & S Tamar. The Colony forward always had a move up his sleeve and apart from scoring three goals, he was always a worry to the opposition.

Too Clever

Kitchee "A" were much too clever for a disappointing Tung Wah (Red), seven and showed how this sort of football should be played.

Chu Wing-woh brought his shooting boots to the party and netted three times while Kwok Yau (2) and Leung Wai-hung shared the others.

The full results were as follows: —Jardines 1, Rediffusion 0; Kitchee "A" 7, S & S Tamar 0; C & W 2, Watsons 1; St. Joseph's 2 (2 corners), Prisons 2 (1 corner); Kitchee "A" 7, Tung Wah 1; Kitchee "B" received a walk-over from Club "B".

Gymnasium 0, Eastern 1; Tung Wah (White) 0, Sling Tso "B" 1; Sling Tso "A" 7, S & S Tamar 0; C & W 2, Watsons 1; St. Joseph's 2 (2 corners), Prisons 2 (1 corner); Kitchee "A" 7, Tung Wah 1; Kitchee "B" received a walk-over from Club "B".

Wilderer Wins German Derby By A Neck

Hamburg, June 22.

Wilderer, owned by the Ravensberg stud, Westphalia, won the German Derby by a neck here today.

Jockey W. Gessmann brought the colt with a devastating late run to snatch the lead from Ocean, ridden by champion German jockey H. Bollow.

Aglo (F. Drechsler) was three lengths further behind in a field of 16.

British jockey Lester Piggott, who rode last year's German Derby winner, was 13th today on Liechten.

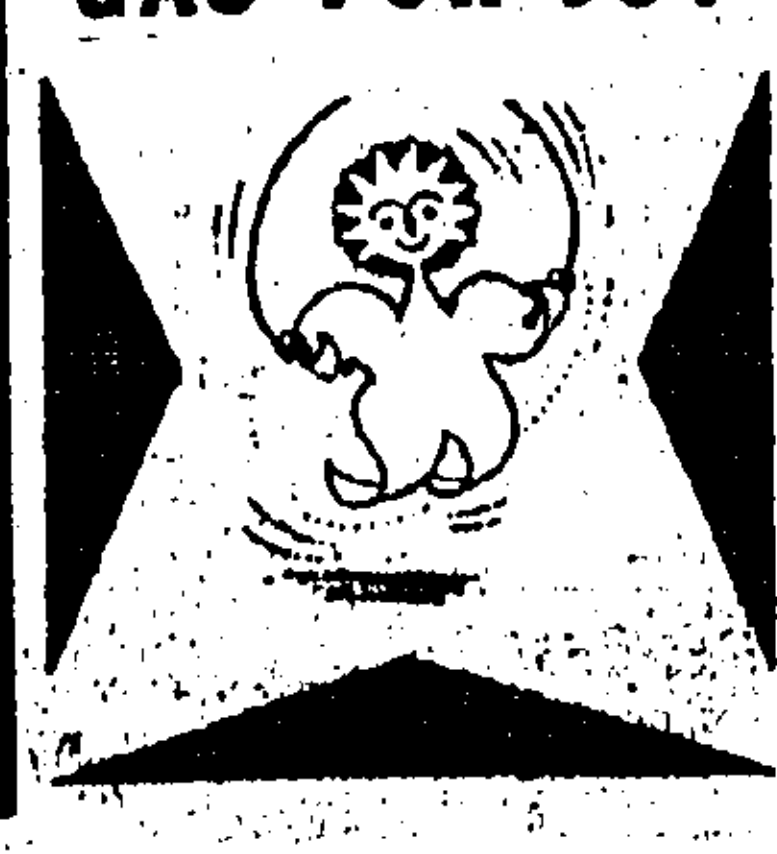

The favourite, Pfalstadel, went lame after two false starts and was pulled up after going two furlongs when the race eventually was started.

The colt, paid 60 marks for a 10-mark win stake, with places paying 40.10 and 33 francs. — Reuter.

THE GAMBOLE

GAS FOR JOY

Disappointingly Small Audience At Loke Yew Hall

LAST night in Loke Yew Hall, the public of this colony had the privilege of hearing the well-known New Zealand bass-baritone, Inia Te Wiata, in a varied and unusual concert.

The audience was disappointedly small, which was a pity, for this artist has a rich, fine voice. The reasons for the poor attendance are probably multiple.

First, the people of Hongkong have, in recent months been given a surfeit of fine artists, particularly under the auspices of Harry Odell. Secondly, it is more difficult for a singer to sustain a two-hour period than for an instrumental player. The vocal range of the soloist is smaller than for the other voices, and it is probably a more onerous task to develop a good programme.

A language for which it was never intended.

To end the first half of the programme two songs from George Gershwin's folk opera "Porgy and Bess"—"It Ain't Necessarily So" and "I Got Plenty o' Nuttin'" were sung accurately but without the negro spirit which is so essential to these songs. These were disappointing, but perhaps so, in all fairness, because of an unconscious comparison with the member of the original cast of the soloist, the original Duke, whom I saw and heard in the premiere many years ago.

The second half of the programme began with a group

Maori Songs

The programme opened with a group of operatic arias and the first half closed with two songs from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" after the interval.

Mr Te Wiata sang a group of Maori songs, followed by songs by Lehmann, Noble and Mouskoglou; to end the programme he sang a group of Indian songs arranged by Max Saunders.

of Maori songs of which "Hauora" and "Pokeru" were superbly sung. In these songs Mr Te Wiata appeared to intend to be at his best - this is what might be expected, considering he came from his native land.

There followed a group of three songs of which "Arrangements" by Norman Macdonald was sung with a convincing Scottish lilt. The accompaniment reminded me of those of Hebridean songs published by the Gaelic Society of Glasgow.

I was most familiar with the operatic arias from Verdi's "O Tu Palermo Sicilian Vespers" (which is one famous bass arias) — in this the singer appeared to be "swimming up" the same process continued in the next item, Wagner's "O Du Mein Holder Abendstern" from the third act of "Lohengrin" — one of the most beautiful arias ever written.

As the concert continued into Te Waiata's voice grew more confident and by the end of the first half, he was in full swing.

Ernest, Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea", I have heard sung better, and Lehar's "Myself and Young" was beautiful moving.

Again Thanks

In response to the applause Mr Te Waiata sang several songs of which my favorite was "Father O' Mine" — this artist has an extensive repertoire, rich full voice—his intonation was never faulty and his diction perfect.

It is to be regretted that the music-loving public of Hong Kong

Two Questions

There are two comments, or questions, I would pose: first, why the closed piano lid? These "trumpets" from across the orchestra were ordinarily sung to the accompaniment of a full orchestra, Moya Rea's beautiful and artistic accompaniments in the arks were barely audible at times. It is asking quite enough of a fine accompanist like Moya Rea to accompany operatic artists on a piano without handicapping her by having the lid of the piano closed.

The extraordinary thing was that after the interval, when songs not written for orchestral accompaniment were sung, the piano lid was opened—this was as it should be, for then there was a really good balance between singer and piano.

The second comment concerns the English translation of German, French and Italian operatic artists. Why these were sung in English is a bit of a mystery. Any song loses something of its essential beauty when shifted to strong failed to turn out its strength to hear him. For those of us who did, however, I say "thank you" to Harry Odell for once again bringing us fine music and a fine artist.

PUBLISHERS TO MAKE SOUTHEAST ASIAN HEADQUARTERS IN HK

A famous British publishing house will open a new office in Hongkong next month which it plans to develop as the Southeast Asian headquarters of the company.

Longmans, Green and Co. Ltd., of London will open a branch office and have taken over an air-conditioned godown in which they will stock large quantities of educational publications.

According to a spokesman for the company this will mean a saving of at least a month in the time previously taken to fill orders from Hongkong which had to be carried out directly from London.

STAFF SERVICE

Most likely to benefit from this new move by the publishers, are the many libraries in Hongkong, a wide range of titles, which includes the complete lists of books by the printers will be available to those interested in expanding their library and marketing policy of the company will not

A spokesman for the Company said that countries like the Philippines, Malaysia, South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia were beginning to show interest in British publications, particularly textbooks which are written in English as the second language.

He said he believed that the market would broaden out later to include subjects such as arts, science and technology.

BUILDING SAID TO BE OUT-DATED & IN BAD REPAIR

Premises described by an architect as being outdated and in bad repair were concerned in an exemption application this morning, brought before a Tenancy Tribunal comprising of Mr Derek Coz (President) with Mr Eric Cumine and Mr Boey Kok.

The houses concerned are two European-type blocks of flats at Nos. 5 and 5A Arthurs Road, Hongkong. Mr. John Shou-ling Woo, an authorised architect, placed plans before the Tribunal for the erection of two more spacious buildings which would be serviced by lift.

Mr W. C. R. Carr is representing the applicants' Company, the Sincere Assurance Company Limited, owners of the buildings.

OPPOSING

Tenants who have filed opposing applications are represented by Mr. Gerald Busto, instructed by Philip Remedios and Co.; Mr. F. H. B. Wong, C. Y. Kwan and Co.; Mr. G. Hampton of Hastings and Co. and Mr. V. Y. F. Lam of Fore and Kwan.

Several disputes as to the measurements taken by the architect were put forward by Mr. Busto and Mr. Hampton. Mr. Busto alleged that in one case a measurement taken was 10 ft. less than it should have been.

The proposed new building will be of six stories in height, said Mr. Woo in his report, and would require more than 100,000 sq. ft. of existing floor space. Cost of the scheme will be over $300,000 including lift and four garage spaces. It would take 11 months to complete.

As to hearing is to continue after new measurements have been taken by the architect.

Marginal note

By cutting down train service and running only a toll bus service in London, the Government should be enough money saved to "streamline" everything provided that fares are raised considerably.

ONE of the most important aspects of television entertainment is that directed to the children, and for some months the Rediffusion Programme Planners have been examining ways and means of providing a first class service for the children during their daily programme sessions from five to six o'clock.

Much of the planning in this respect has now been completed and viewers will see some sweeping and important changes in the material which is to be televised for the young enthusiasts.

An all-out effort has been made to plan the entertainment and educational sides of the programmes without allowing the material to become heavy and stodgy and the advice of experts in many different fields of children's education has been sought.

Since the inauguration of television in Hongkong Adolph Menjou has proved his ability to get the best out of the television medium and at eight o'clock next Thursday he co-

Appeal Against Death Sentence Opium Den Door Keeper Before Full Court

A door-keeper of an opium den, Chan Hing, 40, who was found guilty of the murder of Or Kam-shing, a customer of the den and sentenced to death appealed against his conviction before the Full Court this morning.

The case for the Crown at the trial was that he lay in a bunk in the den in Lung Chun Road, Kowloon City, in the early hours of February 27, by inflicting over 60 wounds on his head, face and arms with a hammer.

The defence claimed that Chan had consumed a quantity of opium before the alleged murder and as a result his mind became confused and he did not know what he was doing at the time.

Appellant is represented by Mr. Terence Shurlock, instructed by Messrs. Lau, Chan and Ko. Mr. D. Rea and Mr. D. G. Willis, Crown Counsel, are appearing for the Crown, assisted by Chief Detective Inspector F. Judge-Huckingham.

The Full Court comprises the Acting Chief Justice, Mr. Justice T. J. Gould and the Senior Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice C. W. Heege.

Grounds of Appeal

The grounds of the appeal are: That the trial judge wrongly allowed relevant evidence to be given by the Crown concerning a matter that had not arisen unexpectedly and which could have been foreseen by human ingenuity. Before the close of the case for the Crown, Counsel for the appellant clearly stated that the defence would not be insanity but intoxication through indulgence in drugs to such an extent that the appellant was incapable of forming specific intention of malice aforethought.

The onus of proof of this intent rested with the Crown and not with the appellant, and therefore the Crown must prove such intent before their case was closed.

★ The trial judge having wrongly allowed evidence to be given by the Crown to call in rebuttal a medical witness, wrongly admitted opinion evidence of his mental state at the time of the alleged offence.

Mr. Shurlock said that throughout the trial the defence had made it perfectly clear to the Court what their defence was going to be.

Counsel said that he would shortly refer to certain passages in the record from which, he submitted, it was abundantly clear that the course of the defence to be raised was that the appellant was incapable by reason of intoxication by drugs in forming specific intention of malice which was one of the essential ingredients in a charge of murder.

Therefore it could not be said that something had arisen unexpectedly and which human ingenuity could not have foreseen, he argued.

On the second ground of the appeal, Mr. Shurlock contended that no doctor who examined a prisoner several months after the crime had been committed, could say whether that person was so intoxicated at the time of the crime as being capable of forming the necessary intent.

It was his submission that the evidence of Dr. Chung Chom-an (a Government psychiatrist specialist) acted to the prejudice of the appellant.

A Report

Counsel said that the appellant had appeared before the trial by the prison doctor, Crown Counsel had showed him a report. In the interest of his client, Mr. Shurlock said he did not think it to have this evidence called. He said therefore that any question to establish sanity or otherwise of the appellant could easily have been called before the Prosecution closed its case.

After reading from the record passages of evidence of Crown witnesses Mr. Shurlock submitted that it was clear that the appellant was an opium addict and that the Prosecution knew, at the time of the examination of Dr. T. M. Tooh, the Forensic Pathologist, what the defence was going to be.

He added that he himself had addressed the Court to the effect that the defence would not be one of insanity but one of intoxication by reason of indulgence in drugs to such an extent that the appellant could not form any specific intent which was a necessary ingredient in a charge of murder.

Hearing is continuing.

No plea was taken.

Wounding

Mr. Leathlean also remanded Lo King-yung, 38, employee of the Ritz Barber Shop, residing at 17 O'Brien Road, first floor, for three days on a charge of wounding.

Man Tells Of Staircase Attack

An elderly Chinese described to the Criminal Court today how he was attacked with a knife and robbed on a dark staircase at his home.

His attacker had pressed a knife in his back and threatened to kill him if he called out, the 62-year-old Chinese man said.

The man, Suen Tong-tai, meat shop proprietor of 137 Sai Yee Street, Mongkok, was giving evidence at the trial of two men on robbery and wounding charges.

Before the Court are Kam Wah-nian Cheung Wah, 27, newspaper hawk, and Au Young Cheung, 27, room boy. Kam has pleaded not guilty to having—★ Unlawfully and maliciously wounded Suen Tong-tai.

Au Young Cheung has pleaded not guilty to having in the company of others robbed Suen Tong-tai of $2,000 and a cheque for $1,500 at Kowloon City on April 17.

The trial is before Mr. Justice Gregg and a jury of three men and four women.

Suen Tong-tai told Senior Crown Counsel Mr. W. A. Blair-Kear that he was climbing the stairs to his home about 9.30 p.m. on April 13.

It was a dark rainy night and there was no electric light on the stairs, he said.

As he reached a turn in the stairs someone grabbed him and told him to be quiet.

"I felt a knife pressed against my back," Suen said. "I raised my hands because I was frightened."

He said his attacker forced him against the wall and said: "If you utter one word I'll kill you."

The man took $110 from Suen's inside jacket pocket, pushed him up the next flight of stairs and fled, Suen said.

He then realised that a wound in the middle of his back was bleeding profusely.

He said he could not recognise his attacker's face in the dark but saw that he was wearing a rain coat with a turned up collar and a hat pulled low over his face.

The hearing is proceeding.

Hongkong Needs More Day Nurseries Say Two Americans

Hongkong needs many more day nurseries in the industrial areas for children of working mothers, observed General Russel E. Randall and Mr. A. Sheridan Atkinson, of the World Vision, Inc., at a Press Conference this morning.

General Randall and Mr. Atkinson are on a Far East tour for the purpose of reviewing social welfare and evangelistic Christian projects supported by the World Vision and to determine additional areas where financial and other assistance to worthy Christian efforts is needed.

They stressed this morning that World Vision was not to establish any organisations of its own in the Colony but that they were here to study the possibility of giving financial support to established institutions which are doing welfare work.

They said they had also had talks with Government officials and were informed of the serious tuberculosis problems in the Colony. "We understand there is the need of additional facilities for patients in the convalescent periods," Mr. Atkinson said. "Apparently, the problem is more than a medical one. It is a social one. The very crowded condition tends to make contagion of tuberculosis easier."

Mr. Atkinson said the World Vision was founded single-handedly by Dr. Robert Pierce, a war correspondent in Korea, eight years ago, and the first major thrust was a programme to support Korean war orphans. The Organisation did not plan to send the Korean orphans to America to be adopted. "Rather, we try to give everything they need so that they will develop into real Christian leaders to stay where they are and to become a constructive force in the locality."

Mr. Atkinson said General Randall and he would be returning to America to present their views to the Board of Directors of the World Vision and the Board would then decide on allocations. At the moment, he said, he was inclined to believe that they would do something in respect of Hongkong. "We want to help people to help themselves," he added.

General Randall and Mr. Atkinson will fly to Taipei this afternoon to continue their tour of the Far East.

9 MONTHS FOR DRUG CHARGE

A broker, Chan Kwong-ching, 30, was sentenced by Mr. E. Corbally at Central Magistracy this morning to nine months' imprisonment on each of two charges of possession of dangerous drugs. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Chan was arrested on June 17 in Bonham Strand. He had two cartons of cigarettes. In one was found two packets containing 50 and 30 grammes of morphine and heroin.

Cruelty To Pigeons

A 27-year-old housewife, Chung Yuk-chun, of 22, Sai Wu Street, first floor, was fined $20 for cruelty to two pigeons, when she appeared before Mr. B. J. Jennings at Central Magistracy this morning.

Defendant was seen plucking feathers of two pigeons. A Police constable then arrested her.

Jumped Bail 3 Years Ago: Man Gets 5 Years

A middle-aged man who was arrested more than three years ago on charges relating to possession and manufacture of large quantities of heroin, and who jumped $70,000 bail, was sentenced to five years' hard labour by Judge R. H. Mills-Owens in the Kowloon District Court this morning.

The defendant, Fung Kin-hei, 55, was arrested during a Police raid on September 11, 1955, at 42K Pak Tai Street, fourth floor. The Police found the defendant and four others in the premises as well as large quantities of various chemicals and equipment used in the manufacture of heroin. A total of 3,549 grammes of heroin were discovered.

The defendant was arrested and taken to the Police station. He was due to appear in Kowloon District Court on November 2, 1955, but failed to do so and his bail of $70,000 was forfeited. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

ONLY STOOGES

The other four found in the house with him were dealt with and received sentences. Defendant was re-arrested on June 9, this year.

Defendant's solicitor, Mr. Donald Cheung of Messrs. F. Zimmern and Co., in mitigation said the defendant was only a "stooge" who had to "take the rap" for those in charge of the organisation. He was a man of the uneducated class and due to his financial situation in 1955 was forced to join the organisation.

The bail money, $70,000 was put up by the head of the organisation, and when the time came for him to appear in court, he was told not to, so he "jumped bail."

Remanded For Insurance Note

A 28-year-old man, Lau Kwai-wan, of 227 Fa Yuen Street, fifth floor, appeared before Mr. T. Creedon at Kowloon Court this morning charged with two counts of possessing a forged insurance cover note with intent to deceive the Hongkong Police, Kowloon Traffic Office on June 21.

He was remanded for four days and allowed bail at $500.

The meeting was called by Mr. W. A. Welch and Mr. C. E. Welch, who were nominated liquidators at an extraordinary general meeting of the company held in December, 1955.

FIVE Europeans are stated to have carried out one of the ghastliest crimes ever perpetrated on the High Seas when three Europeans and seven Chinese were brutally murdered, according to Dulac reports. The outrage occurred on the steamer "Shangan", while on a journey from Tangku to Shanghai. When the ship was 200 miles from Shanghai, the five Europeans, including the skipper, Captain Vikman and his wife, and the chief mate, all of whom were Russians, and also seven of the Chinese crew. The bodies were then thrown overboard.

Later on of the greatest maritime disasters in Dalen ended with the capture of two of the Europeans concerned in the piracy.

A strangely designed car, owned by Mr. Au Boon-hau, a local millionaire, is attracting considerable attention on the streets of Hongkong. It is a large submarine touring car built to resemble a tiger. The body is painted a vivid orange, streaked with black and the radiator is shaped to look like the head of a tiger. It is understood that the car was rebuilt to the original design of Mr. Au Boon-hau.
